

Table of contents

Introduction	7
by Christiane Kayser and Flaubert Djateng
Sustaining peace: from reactive to proactive, based on local capacities	8
by Christiane Kayser
Sustaining peace: What does it mean in practice?	11
by IPI – International Peace Institute
Literary discourse and seeking peace in Goma	22
by Innocent Mpoze
CDJP Bafoussam: Keeping the peace through peace culture	27
by Frauke Dißelkötter
Secrets and sustaining peace	32
by Flaubert Djateng
Sustainable peace within the CPS network: What – who – how? .	38
Reflections on the work for sustainable peace in the CPS Cameroon network, example of the project “Theatre for Peace and the Oppressed” by Alexandra Will and Jeanne Medom
SiLNoRF: Making women’s land rights a reality in Sierra Leone	52
by Santigie Sesay
Responsible media are an essential condition for peaceful elections and sustainable peace	66
by Mustapha Momoh and Abdulai Kamara

The role of the media in promoting sustainable peace	71
Media during election times
by Aminata Finda Massaquoi
The media in latent war zones – an example from DRC	74
by Kennedy Muhindo Wema
Peace is not a word, it is behaviour	80
by Evariste Mfaume
“Lumpen-radicalism and other diseases of tyranny”	88
Inspired by the arrest in Cameroon and subsequent deportation of writer Patrice Nganang, philosopher Achille Mbembe discusses the place of the intellectual in the political sphere, how to resist dictatorship and how to imagine change.
by Achille Mbembe
Peace: Building sustainable peace and global citizenship
through education	98
source: UNESCO
Sustaining peace according to the UN:
the “what”, the “when”, the “who” and the “how”	133
source: UNDP	